CS8601 – Mobile Computing

Topic	Comparative Study of mobile OS
Overview of the Topic	The main is to provide the students to any application that runs on a mobile device. Most platforms have an SDK that you can download and build against. Every platform has an emulator that you can use to test your apps. Most emulators are configurable to match a variety of mobile devices.
Teaching Method	Comparative Study Analysis
Proof for the activity	Click Here
Feedback from the students about the activity and Knowledge gained	Students got the knowledge about the Android platform using different Emulator to implement different application.
Outcome of the activity	Students are able to understand the designing of application based on Android and different OS.